Hi. I'm Josée. Let's be honest with each other.

I'm 58 years old. I don't code. And AI runs about 90% of my business.

I'm not a guru selling dreams. I'm a creator who has built, lost, and rebuilt — including getting wiped out and starting over from zero more than once. Along the way: over 30,000 digital products sold, a top 3% affiliate ranking, and 140,000 followers on Facebook. I say that for one reason only — so you know the work behind this blueprint is real.

Here's what changed everything for me. I stopped trying to do all the work myself. Instead, I built a small team of AI employees inside Claude. One finds my ideas. One writes my posts. One makes my images. One scripts my reels. One checks my brand. One schedules everything. Seven employees. Zero payroll.

My job shrank to three words: Decide. Approve. Press publish. The rest happens while I'm out living my life.

This blueprint is the whole system, in plain language, in five steps. No gatekeeping. You can read it in fifteen minutes and start today. I wrote it the way I'd explain it to a friend at my kitchen table — because that's how I wish someone had explained it to me.

You don't need to be technical. You need to be the boss.

HONESTY NOTE

This blueprint teaches a content system. It does not promise you income, followers, or sales — nobody can promise you those things, and anyone who does is selling hype. What I can promise: a clear system you can actually build, even if you've never used AI before.

I was the bottleneck. Maybe you are too.

For years, everything in my business depended on one person: me.

I wrote every post. I made every image. I answered every message. I stayed up late trying to keep up. And when life knocked me down — and it knocked me down more than once — everything stopped. The business stopped because I stopped.

That's the trap almost every creator is in. You are the writer, the designer, the editor, the scheduler, and the strategist. Five jobs, one tired person. It works until it doesn't.

When I rebuilt the last time, I made one decision that changed everything: I would never again be the only worker in my business. But I couldn't afford a team. So I built one — inside Claude.

Not "tools." Not apps I poke at once and forget. Employees. Each one has a name, a job description, and rules to follow. Each one reads the same brain file, so they all sound like me. And they show up every single day without being asked.

The question that starts everything

Ask yourself honestly: if you stopped posting for two weeks, what would happen to your business?

If the answer is "it would go quiet," you're the bottleneck. This blueprint is how you stop being one.

You're not collecting information anymore. You're hiring.

Stop doing the work. Start directing it.

Here's what my week looks like now, next to what it used to look like.

BEFORE — I DID EVERYTHING

- Hours staring at a blank page
- Posting when I "had time" (so, rarely)
- Every post sounded a little different
- Tech problems ended my day
- Two weeks off = business goes quiet
- Always behind, always guilty

AFTER — MY AI EMPLOYEES DO THE HEAVY END

- Ideas found for me from what's already working
- Content posted every day, on schedule
- One voice, every post — the brain file
- About 30 focused minutes a day from me
- The system keeps working when I rest
- I answer my community personally — that part stays human

The 90/10 rule

AI does about 90% of the work — the heavy end. Writing drafts, making images, scripting reels, scheduling. Your 10% is deciding what goes out and approving it. That 10% is not optional. It's the difference between a real brand and AI slop.

ONE THING AI NEVER DOES FOR ME

My AI employees do content, tech, and scheduling. They do not answer my community. Real people get the real me. That's a trust point I will never automate — and you shouldn't either.

Build your brain file

One document that knows who you are, who you help, and how you talk. Every AI employee reads it before doing anything.

This is the step almost everyone skips — and it's why most people get generic, robotic AI content. Without a brain file, AI writes like everyone. With one, it writes like you.

What goes in it

- ✓ Your story — who you are, what you've built, what you've been through
- ✓ Your person — exactly who you help and what they struggle with
- ✓ Your voice — how you talk, words you love, words you never use
- ✓ Your rules — what you will and won't say (no hype, no fake promises)
- ✓ Your offer — where you send people and why

The easy way to write it

Don't stare at a blank page. Open Claude and say: "Interview me, one question at a time, until you know enough to write my brand brain file. Then write it." Answer honestly for twenty minutes. Claude writes the document. You correct it. Done.

Save it in a Claude Project so every conversation starts with your brain already loaded. And here's the part people miss: the brain file grows. Every time you correct an employee — "I'd never say that word," "my audience doesn't care about this" — the correction goes into the file. Month twelve is better than you can imagine.

THE TOOL I USE

Claude — the only AI I build my employees in. Free week here: claude.ai/referral/F8tzMGyYig

Hire your AI employees

Each employee is a Claude conversation with a written job file: a name, a role, rules, and examples. Here's my team of seven.

EMPLOYEE 01

The Viral Spotter — watches creators in my lane and finds outliers: posts that exploded past someone's normal numbers. That's the market raising its hand. I never copy — I take the proof and rebuild the idea in my voice.

EMPLOYEE 02

The Post Writer — turns one approved idea into a hook, a caption, and a call to action, in my voice, following my brain file.

EMPLOYEE 03

The Image Maker — designs my post images and carousels in my brand colors. No design app, no designer.

EMPLOYEE 04

The Reel Scripter — writes short video scripts in plain, simple language. Short sentences. Kitchen-table talk.

EMPLOYEE 05

The Brand Reviewer — my quality gate. Checks every post against my rules before it goes anywhere. More on this one in Step 5 — it's the employee that protects my name.

EMPLOYEE 06

The Scheduler — lines everything up so content goes out every day, on time, without me touching it.

EMPLOYEE 07

The Video Editor — helps me turn talking clips and b-roll into finished videos, step by step.

Start with two: the Post Writer and the Brand Reviewer. Add the rest one at a time, one per week. You're building a team, not cramming a course.

Give your business a face — without filming

People trust faces. But you don't need a camera, a studio, or a good-hair day. You need an AI avatar.

Here's the honest truth about video: it's where trust is built, and it's the step most people my age refuse to take because they hate being on camera. I get it. So I stopped being on camera.

1 Pick a few good photos of yourself.

Clear, well-lit, looking at the camera. That's your raw material.

2 Create your avatar.

I use Higgsfield (higgsfield.ai?fpr=josee-9610b8). Upload your photo, and it builds a version of you that can speak any script naturally.

3 Clone your voice.

Record yourself reading for a few minutes. Now your avatar speaks in your voice, not a robot's.

4 Feed it scripts.

Your Reel Scriptor writes them. Your avatar performs them. You approve them. That's a video — and you never filmed a thing.

One rule that saves you money and sanity

When you get an avatar image you love, lock it. Reuse the same approved base for every video. Consistency is what makes people recognize you — and re-rolling what already works just burns credits.

DON'T SETTLE

If your avatar looks cheap or your voice sounds robotic, people feel it and they bounce. Take the extra hour to get it right once. Then it works for you forever.

Post every day. Point everything at one door.

Here's where most creators lose. They post sometimes, about everything, pointing nowhere.

The system is the opposite. Your employees make daily posting possible. And every single post — every carousel, every reel, every caption — points to one front door: the one place you want people to go.

For me, that's my free community. Not five links. Not a different offer every week. One door. When someone sees my content three times, they know exactly where to walk in.

The daily content mix

- ✓ Proof — show the system actually working (real screenshots, real process)
- ✓ Help — teach one small thing in plain language
- ✓ Story — your real journey, including the hard parts
- ✓ Invite — a simple, no-pressure pointer to the front door

Notice what's not in the mix: hype, fake screenshots of earnings, and pressure. You don't need them. Showing up every day, being useful, and being honest beats hype over any twelve-month window — because trust compounds and hype burns out.

Post every day, point everything at one door, and be worth trusting when they walk through it.

Your 30 minutes: the 90/10 in action

Here's my actual daily routine. This is the whole job now.

1 Review the ideas (5 min).

The Viral Spotter shows me what's working in my lane. I pick. That's a decision only I can make.

2 Read the drafts (10 min).

Posts, images, scripts — written overnight, waiting for me. I approve, or I say what to fix.

3 Run the quality gate (5 min).

The Brand Reviewer checks everything against my rules. Automation without a quality gate is just a faster way to publish mistakes.

4 Schedule (5 min).

Approved content gets lined up for the day. Then I close the laptop.

5 Answer my people (5 min, personally).

Comments and community questions get the real me. Always.

Why the quality gate matters so much

Every post gets checked against my rules before it goes out: no hype, no promises I can't keep, no words I'd never use, nothing that would embarrass me in a year. The gate is what lets me automate the volume without automating the standards. Skip it, and AI will eventually publish something you'll regret — at scale.

The week-by-week roadmap

Don't do this in one weekend. Do one small thing per day. Thirty days from now you'll have a working team.

Week 1 • The brain

- ✓ Open Claude and create a Project (your headquarters)
- ✓ Do the interview — let Claude ask you questions and write your brain file
- ✓ Correct it until it sounds like you (3–5 rounds is normal)
- ✓ Test it: ask for one post in your voice, compare it to your real writing

Week 2 • First hires

- ✓ Hire the Post Writer — give it a job file and your brain file
- ✓ Hire the Brand Reviewer — write your rules list (the quality gate)
- ✓ Produce your first 3 posts end to end: draft → review → fix → approve
- ✓ Publish the first one. Imperfect and published beats perfect and stuck.

Week 3 • The face

- ✓ Pick your photos and build your avatar
- ✓ Record your voice sample and clone your voice
- ✓ Make your first short video from a script your Reel Scriptor wrote
- ✓ Lock your approved avatar base — reuse it from now on

Week 4 • The rhythm

- ✓ Hire the Viral Spotter, Image Maker, and Scheduler
- ✓ Choose your one front door and put it in every post
- ✓ Get 7 days of content scheduled ahead
- ✓ Start the daily 30-minute routine — and protect it

YOUR NEXT MOVE

The blueprint gets you started. Here's how to go further.

You now have the five steps. Reading them and building them are two different things — so here are the two ways I can help you build.

FREE • START HERE

Join my free community

This is my front door — the AI Digital Society. Inside you get the free training that walks these five steps with you, plus a community of people building the same system. And when you ask a question in there, it's me who answers. Not an assistant, not a bot. Me.

The AI Employee System — Complete A-to-Z Setup Guide

Everything in this blueprint, built out to the last detail: the full brain-file interview, all seven employee job files ready to copy, the avatar walkthrough with screenshots, my hook and caption frameworks, the posting system, and every template I use — in one 38-page guide. You'll find it inside the community.

NO PRESSURE, EVER

The free training is genuinely free, and the five steps in this blueprint genuinely work without buying anything. Start free. Build. Come ask me questions. That's the whole invitation.

ONE LAST THING

Your business should keep working when you rest.

You've spent long enough being the only worker in your business. Build your brain file. Hire your employees. Keep your 10%. And let the system carry the weight while you go live your life.

I'll see you inside.
